

Provo's Unique Musical Organization.

(1) Cal. in Beebe, aged 13, alto; (2) Leonard Cluff, aged 15, bass; (3) Cecil Gates, aged 14, trombone; (4) Karl Keeler, aged 13, baritone; (5) Ray Warner, aged 14, clarinet; (6) Jesse Haws, aged 13, drum major; (7) Harvey Gates, aged 12, snare drum; (8) Elwood Beebe, aged 11, cymbals; (9) Wilford Smoot, aged 12, bass drum; (10) Frank Gates, aged 8, alto; (11) William Bassett, aged 14, trombone; (12) Vivian Snow, aged 12, cornet; (13) Irving Snow, aged 14, cornet, leader; (14) Jesse Field, aged 13, cornet; (15) Harold Smoot, aged 15, cornet.

This group represents the Provo Juvenile band, which surprised the citizens about two weeks ago, when it paraded the streets for the first time, advertising a ball to be given under its auspices. Few of the people knew of this addition to Provo's musical organizations, but it at once became the most popular band in town, and draws a crowd and applause whenever it appears.

The boys have only practiced about six weeks, and have had no instructor, except the leader, Master Irving Snow. But with the enthusiasm of youth, talent, a spirit of mutual helpfulness and a determination to succeed, they have made remarkable progress; and, with the assistance of an experienced instructor, the juveniles will soon be challenging Held's and the rest of the crack "tooters."

ROBINSON CRUSOE'S FAITH.

Bishop Doane Argues That He Was an Episcopalian.

(Albany Argus.) There was once a woman in Albany, prudent and cautious about the literature read by her children, who appealed to Bishop Doane for advice and instruction in the matter. They considered and discussed many juvenile books, the bishop either approving or condemning them as they came up for judgment, until finally "Robinson Crusoe" was named. "Do you think it suitable for my boy Tommy?" asked the woman. "Oh, yes," replied the bishop. "It is quite a harmless narrative, and has pleased boys for ages. Besides, you know, there is some reason to believe Robinson Crusoe was an Episcopalian," and the bishop's eyes twinkled. "Indeed," exclaimed Tommy's mother, "why I never knew that."

"Yes," continued the bishop, "you will remember that he kept Good Friday."

Why Admiral Howell Married.

(Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.) The Howell torpedo is one of the scientific results of Rear Admiral J. A. Howell's inventive work. On account of his success along this line he has been referred to as the "father of the modern torpedo."

So wedded was he to the science of warfare that it was a general belief that he would never marry, and when he led a bride to the altar it was a surprise to the entire navy.

Several years later a fellow officer visited Admiral Howell and saw children of the distinguished sailor playing about the house.

"It's like a dream," said the visitor. "You're a lucky man, admiral," he added; "but tell me, how did you ever come to think about getting married?"

"Oh," replied Admiral Howell, glancing affectionately at his children at play, "I got tired of being referred to merely as the 'father of the modern torpedo.'"

POPE'S REPLY TO A WOMAN.

It Related to His Age and He Was Frank About It.

(Philadelphia Press.) John Wanhawaker brings back from Rome a quaint little story about his holiness, Pope Leo XIII.

While Mr. Wanhawaker was speaking with the aged pontiff a woman wearing theinery that denoted high station in European society approached respectfully and inquired for the pope's health.

"I am very well, considering my years," returned his holiness, a smile lighting up his countenance.

"And how many may they be," inquired the woman.

"Ninety-two," was the quick response, with something of a glow of pride.

"I do so hope," said she, "you will live to be a hundred."

"What, madam," suddenly asked the pope, "would you limit me to that?"

One on Macbeth.

(Portland Oregonian.) Macbeth was suffering from insomnia. "Is this a dagger I see before me?" he inquired of a presence which he somehow felt was occupying the same room he was.

"What do you think it is?" sniffed the presence, with fine scorn, "a mauler rifle or a Krupp cannon?"

Considering the age he was living in, Macbeth was struck by the common sense of the observation of the presence, and, feeling certain that it was a dagger, he decided to let it dig as soon as the fatal moment arrived.

Why He Looked Pleasant.

(Chicago News.) Quinn-I have just discovered why old Barker looked so pleasant when he had his picture taken.

De Fonte-You have?

Quinn-Yes, it seemed that the conductor forgot to take his nickel going down.
